FIRST SUMMER DAY BRINGS COLD RAIN

Official Opening of New Season Finds Many Furnaces and Heating Plants in Operation.

LONGEST DAY OF THE YEAR

Farmers Say Cool Weather is Favorable for Wheat, Oats and Hay—Corn Growth Retarded.

Although today marked the official opening of the summer season, the weather is anything but the variety that one might expect on June 21. The unseasonably low temperature was accompanied by a drizzling rain and in many homes and business houses furnaces and heating plants were fired to dry out the damp air of the rooms. Local people who follow weather conditions closely declare that this is the first time in many years that the air has been so cool at this time of the year.

However, others recall that the summer of 1917 was unusual in that the temperature was much lower than normal and furnaces and stoves were used practically every month of the entire year. There was an excessive rainfall during the same year and the first frost came so early in the fall that more than half of the county's corn crop was ruined. Because of the unseasonable weather during the growing period the corn matured slowly and was quickly nipped when the first early frost came.

Considerable corn was planted late this year and farmers are already concerned for fear that the disaster of 1917 will be repeated this year. The almanac predicts killing frosts from the middle to the 25th of September which was the same time that the first frost in 1917 came. Because of the cool weather since the corn was planted the fields have made slow progress and unless more favorable weather comes during the next sixty days the corn crop in the county will likely be damaged. But this is only the first day of the summer season and probably before the end of the present week local people will be sweltering under the burning sun and wishing for a few moments' relief.

The cool weather is not damaging to all farm crops as the farmers declare that the last week has been very favorable to wheat, clover and oats. The wheat is in much better condition than it was two weeks ago and a sixty per cent. crop is predicted. The heads are forming well and from all appearances the grain will be heavy. While the stand is not as heavy as usual the grain heads are longer and there is every indication that the quality will be good.

Many late oats were sown in this county last spring and the cool, damp weather is very favorable for these fields. The early sown oats are heading and the fields which were sown later are growing rapidly. Grain dealers look for an unusually heavy oats yield this summer.

The cool weather is also said to be beneficial to clover. Some fields have already been cut but others are standing and the farmers are unable to harvest their crop until the weather is more settled.

JAIL BREAKER IS ARRESTED HERE

James Hayes Returned to Madison to Face Charge of Stealing Horse and Buggy.

WALKED TO THIS CITY

Arrested by Police Sunday Night at Home of His Mother in Highlawn.

James Hayes, a former resident of this city, was arrested Sunday night by the local police at his mother's home in Highlawn, upon request of the sheriff of Jefferson county where he is wanted to face a charge of grand larceny. Hayes was arrested shortly after his arrival here, having walked the distance of forty-five miles from Madison to this city. He was placed in the city jail and Sheriff Gilbert DeHanner, of Madison, came here in his automobile this morning and returned him to that city.

Hayes escaped from jail at Madison Saturday night where he was held charged with stealing a horse from one farmer and a set of harness and buggy from another residing in the neighborhood of Canaan, sixteen miles east of Madison, early Friday morning. He tried to sell the outfit for $75 in a nearby town. The Jefferson county sheriff was notified and drove there, arrested Hayes and

STEPHEN H. THOMAS DIES VERY SUDDENLY

Well-known Resident Stricken With Heart Attack—Funeral Thursday Afternoon.

Stephen H. Thomas, a well-known resident of this city, was found dead at noon today under a tree at the home of his sister, Mrs. W. R. Day, at the west end of Jackson street. The body was first discovered by a little girl who was visiting at the Day home. She noticed someone lying under the tree and notified Mr. Day. He went to investigate and found Mr. Thomas' body. Mr. Thomas had been working in the garden and had started to the house when stricken with a heart attack. Mrs. Day had told a little girl to take Mr. Thomas his medicine and call him to dinner. Before calling him the little girl went for a bucket of water and saw Mr. Thomas starting toward the house. The body was discovered about ten minutes later. Mr. Thomas had been failing in health for several months and was under a physician's care. The coroner's inquest will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Thomas was born at Bracken County, Ky., October 7, 1843 and was seventy-six years old. He came to this city eighteen years ago. For several years he was engaged in the grocery business and was employed by the city for some time. For the last few years he had been living a retired life.

The wife of the deceased preceded him to the grave several years ago. He leaves one daughter, Miss Marguerite Thomas, two sisters, Mrs. W. R. Day, with whom he lived, and Mrs. Anna Houston, of Detroit, Mich., and two brothers and other relatives and a host of friends.

The funeral service will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 from the Day home on West Jackson street, conducted by Rev. W. E. Carroll, pastor of the Central Christian church. Interment in Riverview cemetery.

EARLY DECISION ON WAGE DEMAND

Railroad Labor Board Announces

That New Scale Will be Retroactive to May 1, 1920.

NOTICE IS RECEIVED HERE

Railroad Employees Interested in Statement Which Deals With Higher Wage Request.

That the United States railroad labor board will make an early decision relative to the request of railroad employees for higher wages, is the information that has come to local organizations direct from the board. Notices of a like character have also been issued by B. M. Jewell, president of the railroad employees department of the American Federation of Labor.

The notice announces that the railroad labor board will make a decision on wage demands at the earliest possible date and that the findings will be based on testimony given at hearings in Washington and Chicago recently. Ninety-three per cent. of the railroad employees of the country will be affected by the first decision, it is stated.

The notice states that inasmuch as a hearing has not been given the representatives of certain short line roads and other carriers which are not represented by the railroad executives' committee the decision will necessarily cover only the employees of the roads represented by the executive committee, and of such other roads as are properly before the board. As soon as practical, it is stated, the board will give a hearing to the representatives of the short lines and other carriers not represented at the present hearings.

The notice further states that the decision will be effective as of May 1, 1920, "and will apply according to the time served to all employees who were in the service as of May 1, and who remain therein or who have come into the service since and remained therein."

Local railroad men have expected that the United States railroad board would soon make a decision on their request for higher wages. Announcement that the decision will be retroactive to May 1, this year, insures the employees that their interests are to be protected even if there is a slight delay in the official announcement.

SECOND OUTLAW RAILROAD STRIKE STARTED IN EAST

Switchmen in Philadelphia Dissatisfied With Delay in Settlement of Wage Dispute.

By United Press.

New York, June 21—A second "outlaw" railroad strike today spread rapidly through eastern railroad centers.

What the men term unreasonable delay by the railroad labor board in handing down its decision on appeals by railroad employees for higher wages was given for the reason for the new walkout. The strike first appeared Saturday in Philadelphia where several hundred switchmen were reported out. It spread to Baltimore, Syracuse, and Wilmington. The total number out at noon today was not more than 2,000, according to estimates by railroad officials, but strike leaders declared that at least 10,000 had joined their ranks.

Passenger traffic was not affected but freight embargoes were announced. W. N. Hoak, vice-president of the brotherhood of railway trainmen who was in Washington today, announced that the unions may appeal to President Wilson to hasten the decision of the railroad labor board. Hoak was attempting to induce the "outlaw" strikers to return to work.

SUPREME COUNCIL RESUMES SESSION

Final Settlement of Questions Which Have Prevented Economic Stability in Europe Discussed.

DISTRIBUTION OF INDEMNITY

Italy Contends She Should Have Large Percent. of Total Reparations Paid by Germany.

By United Press.

Boulogne, June 21—The meeting of the Allied supreme council was formally called to order at 11:30 a. m. today.

The following commentary was issued shortly after the conference met:

"The conference of the allied supreme council opened this morning and discussed German indemnities and disarmament. Marshal Foch and General Wilson have been instructed to draft a note to Germany regarding disarmament and destruction of war materials. This note will be taken under advisement at the session this afternoon. Allied financial experts have been instructed to rush their report on indemnities. The program of the conference included discussion of the Russian and near Eastern questions."

Final settlement of questions which have prevented Europe's return to economic stability and world peace was expected to be reached today when leading statesmen of all the allies assembled at the Chateau De Labella here. The ostensible purpose of today's meeting was disposal of the German indemnities and reparation. There was evidence that the critical situation in the near east where Turkish nationalists are preventing execution of the treaty terms and seriously menacing the international peace of Italy and the Balkan states would have preference.

It was understood that Premier Millerand and David Lloyd George had come to agreement on the indemnity question at their conference at Hythe, Sunday. Viscount China, Japanese ambassador to Great Britain arrived here Sunday. Paul Hymans, Belgian foreign minister and J. P. P. J. de Broqueville, Belgian minister of the interior also arrived. Marshal Foch and Finance Minister Francois-Marsal represented France. The French premier accompanied by Lloyd George, was expected to arrive by boat before noon today.

Count Camillo Storza, Italian foreign minister, upon arrival here declared Italy would claim 28 per cent. of the total indemnity to be exacted from Germany. The council was expected to order Germany immediately reduce her army to 100,000 men. France has agreed to accept the British suggestion regarding execution of the German

ACTION OF WILSON WATCHED CLOSELY

Democrats, With Convention Week Away, Also Wondering What Bryan Will Do.

LIQUOR QUESTION IN DOUBT

National Committee To Set Friday to Hear Contests—Glass Drafts A Platform.

By United Press.

San Francisco, June 21—A week from the opening of their national convention, Democrats find themselves as puzzled and bewildered as the Republicans were at Chicago before their "unbossed" convention met.

The Democrats too are bossless and as a result those here mill around seeking the answers to a number of questions including:

Will president Wilson try for the nomination for a third term?

What is Bryan to do and will he try to control the convention?

What will the party do about the liquor question?

Why did McAdoo retire from the campaign?

There are a lot of questions some democrats would like answered if they could find anyone who knows the answers. They are chiefly concerned today, however, about just two men—Wilson and Bryan. As nobody here has any idea what either of these has up his sleeve in the way of convention trumps, there is a general disposition among the managers of candidates to go pretty slowly until the Wilson and Bryan programs begin to appear. As one astute manager put it today they don't want to have to take anything back later that they may say now so they are saying nothing.

San Francisco will take on its convention clothes this week with the arrival of state delegations, the opening of candidates' headquarters and the addition of municipal decorations. Democrats who arrived early have put in most of their time sight seeing and real campaign activity has been lacking.

The national committee will sit Friday to hear contests, one from Georgia and probably one from Missouri.

The league of nations issue is involved in both the Missouri and Georgia contests. The national committee's decision on the outcome of that contest, Clark Howell, the oldest Democrat national committeeman in point of service may lose his place.

Senator Glass of Virginia is expected to arrive during the week bearing the draft of a platform said to meet the president's views.

BEVERIDGE CONFERS WITH HARDING ON CAMPAIGN

Restoration of Constitutional Government Through The Party is One Objective.

By United Press.

Washington, June 21—Big chiefs of the Republican party met with Senator Warren C. Harding, presidential nominee, today to shape plans for the coming campaign. Five national committeemen together with Will Hays, Harry Daugherty, Fred Upham, treasurer, and Clarence P. Miller, secretary of the national committee, will attend the conference. The date of the notification ceremony will be agreed upon. Personnel of the special committee to manage Harding's campaign will be gone over and ways and means of financing the national campaign will be discussed.

Progressive and liberal republicans will support Harding for president but they will reserve the right to go beyond the republican platform on labor issues, ex-Senator Albert J. Beveridge, Indiana, former Progressive, said today following a conference with the Republican nominee.

"Senator Harding is the nominee of the Republican party and we are going to support him," Beveridge said. "But I have my own views on MONDAY, JUNE 21, 1920.

Warren G. Harding, Republican presidential nominee, has called a conference of representatives of his party for the purpose of discussing plans for the coming campaign. The conference is significant as it proves that the nominee is desirous of meeting the wishes of the entire party. Senator Harding's political opponents have endeavored to create the impression that he is only the choice of the so-called "senatorial group." This is far from the truth. The balloting at the Republican national convention was the climax of a long campaign and quite naturally many of the delegates were pledged to other candidates. But when it was evident that these candidates could not be chosen the majority support was quickly given to Harding as the delegates were convinced he represented the type of leader that both the party and the country needed. The majority support could just as easily have been given to some other candidate if Harding had not been acceptable. Harding was nominated because he was the majority choice of the Republican delegates assembled in convention.

The conference called by the nominee demonstrates that he is not answerable to any group but to the whole party. His purpose is to do what the majority of the party wants. The willingness with which leaders have answered his conference call shows that they are supporting him because they believe that the country needs him.

Senator Harding has always been a constructive statesman. He has worked earnestly, quietly but effectively. Leaders in both parties seek and value his counsel and advice. He knows how to accomplish the very things that are needed for the future advancement and prosperity of the nation.

The fact that W. G. McAdoo was positively announced that he will not accept the Democratic presidential nomination, makes one wonder if his father-in-law is still in a receptive mood for another whack at the White House job.

returned the stolen property to the owners.

Last December Hayes married a daughter of James Lanham, a prominent farmer of the Canaan neighborhood. They had been living at Indianapolis until a few days ago when his wife returned to her father's home to live, as she claimed Hayes had threatened her life and mistreated her. Hayes followed her to Canaan and when he put in his appearance at the Lanham home, Mr. Lanham ran him away. That night he is alleged to have stolen the horse and buggy from Lanham's neighbors.

Sheriff DeHanner said that Hayes was the only prisoner in the county jail and as he appeared to be mentally unbalanced, had been put in the woman's department, from which place he made his escape.

When officers went to the Hayes home last night they found him asleep and had considerable trouble in arousing him as he was completely exhausted from his long walk.

Hayes has served time in the Jeffersonville reformatory, having been sent from this county several years ago for breaking into a Baltimore & Ohio freight car. Following his release from the reformatory he enlisted in the army. It was while in the service at Fort Benjamin Harrison that Hayes became acquainted with the Lanham girl who was at that time employed in Indianapolis.

The Jefferson county court is in session at Madison and Sheriff DeHanner said that Hayes would probably be arraigned Wednesday morning. It is expected that he will plead guilty and be returned to Jeffersonville.

A divorce was granted in the Jefferson circuit court Saturday to Mrs. Hayes.

Miss Edna Kasting returned Sunday evening from a visit in Louisville and Jeffersonville.

He said Harding will have two objectives in the campaign—renovation of the party and a return of constitutional government through party control.

"It is a program that we who call ourselves liberals can unite on," Beveridge added.

Beveridge called at Harding's request and is the first of a number of progressives to be summoned in an effort to unite all factions. Beveridge called just before Senator Harding went into conference with five national committeemen to talk over campaign arrangements.

TIMEPIECES OF OLD DAYS

In Its Collection Philadelphia Museum Has the Oldest Watch of Which There Is Record.

In the newly organized silverware department of the Pennsylvania museum at Philadelphia there has been placed a loan exhibition of ancient timepieces collected by Moyer Fleisher, who has spent forty years in gathering watches which tell a horological story. The oldest of this collection was made in the fifteenth century.

"The first instrument for reckoning time," said Mr. Fleisher, "was the sun dial; then the candle, followed by the water clock. These led up to the mechanical contrivances with weights and springs. Watchmaking is a refinement of clockmaking, which was taken from the Chinese. The early watches were made of bronze, and were either circular or striking watches. At first they really were portable clocks. It is quite probable that the Puritans, with their prejudice against display, were responsible for concealing their watches in their pockets."

The oldest watch in existence, which is exhibited in this collection, was made by Peter Henlein, a Nuremberg blacksmith, about about the date when Columbus was laying his plans for his first western voyage. The watch is about 2 1/3 inches in diameter, one inch thick, and weighs seven ounces avoirdupois. The case is bronze gilt, and may have been produced by casting, by press die and roller die, and finally hand-tooled. The dial is of brass, sunk in the center, in which cavity is a revolving disk with a pointer which indicates the hours engraved up to 12 and repeated on the opposite half, making the dial a day and night indicator. Outside the hour numerals are four circles, marked with minutes, fifteen to each circle. The hour indicator makes one revolution in 24 hours, and the double-ended minute hand one revolution in 15 minutes. The materials of the movement are iron and steel throughout, with the exception of the brass bushings of the pivot holes. The workmanship is excellent.

Henlein, the inventor of this watch, was persecuted for witchcraft when he withdrew from his companions to work out his invention. He finally was put in prison, where his watch was perfected. After some time he retired to the convent of the Carmelites, where he was allowed to manufacture watches on condition that he give the proceeds to the order. He died in 1540 at Nuremberg, the scene of his persecutions, where a monument has been erected to him.

HANDLING OF NEW GRAIN CROP IS BIG PROBLEM

Indiana Farmers Federation Calls Conference in Indianapolis for June 28-29.

Indianapolis, June 21.—Officers of the Indiana Federation of Farmers' Associations are busily engaged in making arrangements for the state-wide conference of grain producers to be held in this city on June 28 and 29. Representatives of the various county associations about the state, bankers, railroad officials, elevator men and officers of the Indiana Coal Operators' Association are among those being asked to attend the meeting. An effort is also being made to have a representative from the Federal reserve bank from this district to be present at the session which has been called primarily for the purpose of devising ways and means whereby the farmer may be able to move his wheat and oats crop in the face of the present shortage of transportation facilities.

General Secretary Lewis Taylor said that the grain producers are facing a serious problem in all parts of the state through the present car shortage and that elevator men are finding it impossible to get the necessary cars to move what grain they have on hand.

It has been pointed out that the wheat and oats, much of which will be handled directly from the thrashing machine to the elevator, will make matters more serious in the way of congestion in the near future. This might mean that the farmers would have no outlet to market their product. A number of the county associations of the Federation have written into headquarters calling attention to conditions in their respective localities.

Banks all over the country, especially in the rural districts, are heavy borrowers from the Federal reserve fund, according to E. E. Reynolds, state treasurer, and this feature presents another phase of the situation. If elevators are placed in a position whereby they can not move their grain they will be compelled to borrow on the grain they now have on hand. It has been pointed out that if the farmers are not able to market their new grain there will be a further shortage of money to liquidate indebtedness. Reports show that few farmers are in a position to store their own grain in the proper manner.

HAPPIEST MAN IN STATE OF INDIANA

Lambert Was Worried About Wife, Rejoices Now Over Restoration To Health.

"You can tell them Tanlae has helped my wife, too, and of all the people who have made statements about being benefited I don't believe any have more cause to feel thankful," said Grover Lambert, 24 South Sixth street, Terre Haute, Ind., in conversation with a Tanlae representative, a few days ago.

Mr. Lambert is proprietor of the Terre Haute Barber Supply Company, and his standing and influence as a business man and citizen are too well known to require further comment.

"Tanlae has brought health and happiness to my wife," added Mr. Lambert, "and has made me the happiest man in all Indiana. About a year ago, while the 'flu' was going the rounds she had a very serious case. I thought she would never recover and when she did finally get up she was as weak as a baby and nothing seemed to help her regain her strength. She was left without any appetite and such a badly deranged stomach that she could hardly eat anything. She complained of a dull pain in her stomach and suffered all the time with indigestion. Her kidneys worried her constantly and her back pained her so severely that she could hardly stand it. She could neither cook our meals or do any of her housework and had to remain in bed for weeks at a time. She was so nervous that the door bell or telephone ringing or any little noise would upset her.

"She felt discouraged and despondent, and several times I was greatly worried because her chances of recovery seemed so slim. But some wonderful things happen in this world and the way Tanlae has helped her is one of them. One afternoon while looking over the paper I noticed Tanlae recommended so highly that I bought a bottle. The first bottle did not seem to help her much, but after taking the second bottle I noticed some difference in the way she rested at night and by the time she had finished her fifth bottle she was like an entirely different woman. She can eat anything she wants and as much as she wants without the least trouble from it. Her nerves have quieted down until she sleeps the whole night through and gets up mornings feeling fine. She is now doing all her housework, including the cooking, and we sit down and enjoy our meals together like we did in the good old days before she was taken sick. She has a good healthy color and I can tell from the way her face has filled out that she has gained several pounds in weight. She says life is worth living now, and words cannot express the gratitude I really feel over what Tanlae has done for her."

Tanlae is sold in Seymour by Maxon's Pharmacy, by C. W. Taulman at Crothersville, and by Chas. Brock at Brownstown.

treaty's military clauses. The two governments will recommend that today's conference empower the France-British military advisers to formulate proposals to insure rapid execution of the disarmament clauses of the treaty.

The question of Greek intervention was also to be considered today. Premier Venizelos said Greece could furnish thirteen divisions and could effectively deal with the Turks single handed if they were permitted to follow the nationalists outside the zone now occupied by the Greeks.

The commander of the British naval forces at Constantinople has notified Lloyd George that the Allied position in the Dardanelles was seriously threatened by Mustapha Kemal's nationalist troops. These forces occupy almost all of Anatolia and were reported preparing to launch a strong attack upon the Allied military and naval forces.

The question of resumption of trade relations with Russia also will come up for consideration. Unless Millerand backs down upon his former stand against trading with the Soviets France will be in isolate position. Tentative approval of Lloyd George's negotiations with Gregory Krassin has been given by all the Allies except France. Today's conferences will be more important than the one scheduled to take place at Spa.

THE MAN WHO WASN'T HIMSELF

ROBERT AMES BENNET

COPYRIGHT, BY W. G. CHAPMAN.

She peaked her eyebrows at the closely observant physician. "Isn't it horrid of him?" she pouted. "How long will it take to cure him?"

A telephone bell rang somewhere back of the hall. Doctor Kirkland watched Tillie go out to answer the call before he replied to the question: "How long will it take? He probably can bring on his proofs in a few days."

"Proofs? But that's no answer. I asked—"

"Yes, yes, sweetheart, I know. You see until he—h'm—I wonder if we could not agree on a compromise. Suppose we have an understanding that until Mr. Clinton—"

"Clinton?"

"—Mr. Clinton produces his proofs we are all to act as if he really is your brother."

"I could not do it, either in justice to this young lady or to you and your family, sir."

"Of all the obstinate pigs!" cried Amy. "You ought to know you're your self, and yet you won't even pretend."

"Is that quite fair, Miss Lowrie?" he asked. "How can I pretend to be your brother, when I know I am not?"

"How can we pretend you're not, when we know you are?" she rejoined. Tillie poked her head in past the rear hall door. "Doctor," she called. "Missus Kirkland says to tell you you're wanted at once at the san, and shall they come on down now?"

"Yes, yes," said the physician. As the woman disappeared, he stepped to the front door. "Must go at once, Amy. Be back again. Meantime, they're coming."

"Doctor—wait! I—" exclaimed Clinton.

But the physician rushed off unheeding; and the young man could not very well run after him with a determined young lady clinging to the tail of his coat.

The captive paused in the doorway and looked over his shoulder at the girl. She took a fresh grip on his coat and braced one little slippered foot against the door casing.

"Shall I have to call Tillie to help?" she inquired.

"No," he answered.

She led him unresisting into the simply furnished room that opened off the hall.

He smiled quizzically and seated himself in the big leather chair to which she led him.

"You see, all you need is gentle persuasion," she remarked as she ended down before him with her arm on his knee. "Now we're comfy, and you look quite yourself."

"Do I?"

"Yes. So I want to ask your brotherly advice—not that I expect to take it. Charlie is coming tonight, and he is coming to the point—if I let him, shall I?"

"What?" queried the young man who persisted in calling himself Rich and Clinton.

"Oh, Will!" exclaimed the girl. "You do remember! You remember that you did not want me to encourage him."

"No, I do not remember. I cannot even pretend—" He stopped and sat gazing fixedly at her animated face.

"Cannot what?" she asked.

"Pretend to remember, when I am not—" Suddenly his face became resolute. "Just the same, I do not wish you to encourage that fellow."

"Meanie! Isn't he the best dressed man about town?"

He frowned. "You insist that I must speak as a brother?"

"Of course."

"Very well, then. I should say that he is too much of a—" Clinton hesitated. "Really, Miss—Amy, I cannot say anything. It would not be honorable, when you would be taking my opinion as that of your brother."

"Botheration! Even if you don't remember you're Will, I want you to make believe you do."

A bell rang in the rear of the house. The young man looked toward the hall with an expression of relief not unmingled with regret.

"Is that a caller?" he asked. "Had you not better take a chair?"

"Not unless you promise to be yourself."

"I promise," he readily responded.

She sprang up and danced around his chair with the gleefulness of a child. Tillie thrust her gray head in at the hall doorway and announced austere: "Here's Missus Kirkland an' Miss Ellen an' Mister Bemm."

As the callers entered, their animated faces belied the sedateness of their movements.

"Amy, my dear!" Mrs. Kirkland called out. "You're dancing!—he looks so at home! Can it be possible that he—?"

"Yes, yes! He's promised to be himself! Isn't it grand?" cried the girl. She whirled about to grasp Clinton's arm as he rose. "Hurry out into the hall with Ellen and tell her—hurry!"

Ellen clasped her hands. "Will!" she murmured. "Do you really remember? Have you come to your self?"

"Ah, yes, that's the question," added Bemm. "Out with it, old man. Own up, now; you've been ragging us all along."

"Pretending? Will pretending?" protested Ellen. "I cannot believe it."

Clinton straightened. "I wish to inform Mr. Bemm that throughout this peculiar affair of mistaken identity I have insisted that I am myself, Richard Clinton. All of you think I am Mr. Lowrie. I know that I am not. If I stay here while you are under such a misapprehension, you will have the right to consider me an impostor when you learn the truth. I shall go to some hotel and remain there until I have sent on and received the proofs of my identity."

"Go to a hotel?" remonstrated Amy. "Why, you dear old silly, you're known everywhere. If you register under this stage name, they'll send for the insane asylum doctors."

"They might, indeed," confirmed Mrs. Kirkland.

"Is the whole town a pack of lunatics?" exclaimed Clinton, his blue eyes flashing. "I shall not go to a hotel. I will take my train tonight as I intended, and—"

"Oh, no, no!" implored Ellen. "Surely you'll not desert us!"

"I will go on to California," he insisted. "There I shall send for proofs of my identity, and when I have finished my visit to the coast, I shall return here to convince you of my mistake."

"You shan't go!" declared Amy.

"I must," he replied. "If I stay here, you and Miss Kirkland will persist in this delusion. Probably you'll soon hear that your brother is in the East or abroad. Imagine your anger at me when you learn that I am not he."

"Mr. Clinton," said Mrs. Kirkland, "do you not realize that it will cause us much apprehension—anguish—if you go away while we still believe you to be Will?"

"It would be dishonorable of me to stay," he rejoined, and he started to ward the door.

"I shall go and not return until I have the positive proofs of my identity to show you."

"Proofs of what you think you are?"

Oh, that means you'll never come back!" cried Ellen.

Amy slipped away and glided out into the room behind the parlor as Clinton took another step toward the hall door. Bemm set himself directly in the way.

"Hold on, old man," he advised. "As your friend, y'know, I really can't let you go."

Clinton put out his hand to push him away. Bemm caught him by the wrist in a viselike grasp. Clinton's face went white; his eyes shone like sunlit ice. He spoke in a very low and quiet tone: "You fool. There are ladies present. Let go."

"Not unless you give me your word to stay and clear up about those bonds," replied Bemm.

Clinton made an attempt to wrest himself free. Bemm held him fast with unexpected strength. But he made the mistake of permitting a shade of irony to appear in his suave smile. The look in his prisoner's eyes warned him to guard himself. He flung up his right arm with the quickness of an expert boxer. Clinton was a fraction of a second quicker. His clenched left hand drove in over the upswinging arm and encountered Bemm's chin. Stunned by the blow, Bemm swayed backward and would have fallen heavily had not Clinton eased him to the floor.

Ellen uttered a stifled shriek. Clinton straightened up from beside the white-faced inert interloper and looked apologetically at the girl and her equally startled mother.

"Pray pardon me!" he said. "Do not be alarmed. He'll be all right in a few moments. . . . I could not stand for his laying hands on me."

"To think that you could have so forgotten yourself!" reproved Mrs. Kirkland.

"Was I to endure being treated as a thief?" he broke in. "I regret that he forced it upon me before yourself and your daughter. However, I shall now relieve you of my ungentlemanly presence."

"Oh, Will! No, no! Do not leave me!" implored Ellen.

Before he could reach the hall doorway Amy popped into it from the other side and outspread her arms to bar the way.

"You dear old silly," she bantered. "That's all the good it did you knocking down poor Charlie boy. You can't run away. I've locked the front door, and I've hidden the key and your hat."

"Miss Lowrie," he stammered.

"I will not permit even you to—"

"Growlly bear! Growlly bear!" she mocked.

He stepped toward her with the evident purpose of pushing past into the hall. She darted to meet him, and, before he could evade her, flung her arms about his neck. He grasped her wrists, but her fingers were locked fast. To have freed himself he must have resorted to outright violence.

"I—I—Miss Lowrie," he stammered, "really this is—"

"Promise!" she demanded, clinging tighter.

He looked down into her upturned face. The starlike brown eyes were soft with tender affection and bright with merry triumph. To gaze into them and remain stern was an impossibility.

"But I—"

"You must—else I'll never, never let go. You'll have to carry me around with you all the time, everywhere."

The embarrassment that had succeeded his sternness gave place in turn to a whimsical look. "I've a mind to take you at your word."

"You mean—?"

"Take you with me."

She released one hand to stroke his forehead. "Your poor head!" she soothed. "There! There!"

With a sudden return of irritation, he sought to draw himself free from her. She clung to him and again locked her fingers together.

"No, you don't," she exclaimed. "It's no use trying to escape. You've got to promise."

"I say, Miss Amy," murmured Bemm, eagerly sitting up, "if I should try to run off, would you—"

"I promise to remain until Doctor Kirkland comes," broke in Clinton.

"Oh, you will? And Charlie's not hurt?" exclaimed Ellen.

"That's a dear old brotherkins!" approved Amy in the same breath, and she rose on tiptoe with her smiling lips upturned for his brotherly salute.

Bemm sighed enviously. At the sight Clinton bent over the temptation. His lips came so near to the girl's that his mustache grazed the tip of her saucy nose. But instead of kissing her on the mouth, he put up his hand to lift her backling head, and pressed his lips reverently to her broad white forehead.

"I say, now," remarked Bemm, "if that's not proof you're her brother—! Miss Amy has only to say the word, and I shall be charmed to illustrate how one who is not a brother—"

The girl faced the others, leaning affectionately on Clinton's shoulder. "Ellen dear, call Tillie to fetch a bucket of ice water. Poor Charlie Bemm is still off his head."

"I'm not," denied Bemm, rising a trifle unsteadily. "On the contrary, it was my head that came near being off me."

Mrs. Kirkland looked earnestly at Clinton. "May I suggest that an apology—" she began.

"From me!" flashed Bemm, with a heartiness that forestalled Clinton's frown. "Though I meant it as a friend, I should not have—er—resorted to physical persuasion."

"That is generous of you, Mr. Bemm," said Clinton.

"Well, you see, you persuaded me, instead," rallied Bemm. "You presented a glibly effective argument." "Oh, if Charlie takes it that way, Will," remarked Mrs. Kirkland.

"Indeed, yes!" added Ellen, regarding Amy's sisterly cuddling with a wistful look. "But you'll never do such a shocking thing again, will you?"

"That depends," answered Clinton, a trifle dryly.

WILL INVESTIGATE ARIZONA GOVERNMENT LAND OFFER

Three Local Men Leave Saturday Night for Sentinel—Land Will Raise Cotton.

Maurice E. Jennings, Lynn Faulkner and Charles Rottman left Saturday night for Sentinel, Arizona, to investigate a land proposition in which a tract that is said will raise fine cotton, is offered for twenty-five cents per acre. Information concerning the proposition was obtained by Mr. Jennings, and if it is found as represented, will be a good investment. The three men wired in advance to have three hundred and twenty acres held for them until they could reach Sentinel. They will arrive there Wednesday morning.

The proposition as said to be open to ex-service men only and in order to buy it they must appear in person and present their honorable discharges. The land is limited to three hundred and twenty acres to each former service man. If the proposition is a good one the three local men will wire back to their friends here and others will leave immediately for Arizona to buy land. The local men were not fully acquainted with the proposition when they left, but considered it well worth investigating.

Money in Raising Alligators.

There is much money to be made in alligator farming. The demand for alligators is large, constant and rapidly increasing; the supply is limited, and there is not much competition. The few alligators have to be fed on meat, but they need no food from September 1 to May 1, for this is their hibernating season, when they do not eat at all.
